As Market Leader for Aviation for Urban Engineers, Chris Gubeno, manages the firm's aviation business line and Urban's strategic pursuits nationwide. Chris is also actively involved as a project director and manager, taking a hands-on approach to ensure the best client service.

With over 35 years of experience in the industry, Chris's background includes extensive airport and facility planning and preliminary engineering design including airport layout plans and master plans; environmental planning and environmental assessments; the design of airfield and landside facilities including taxiways, runways, aprons, navigational aids, roadways, parking lots, utilities, and stormwater management infrastructure; the design of terminals, hangars, and maintenance facilities; and construction administration, management, and oversight.

For the Trenton Terminal project, Chris oversaw and managed the design of the 4 gate, 125,000 square foot terminal that will be bid later this year.
